Description

The justice studies minor is an interdisciplinary program that blends topics from humanities departments (e.g., philosophy), social science departments (e.g., psychology, sociology, women's and gender studies), departments that include both humanities and social science faculty (history, political science) and professionally oriented departments (education, family studies, social work). Topics studied include courts, family violence, rights, substance abuse, juvenile justice, school law, children as witnesses, hate crimes and community policing.

Requirements

The Minor in Justice Studies requires students to take a total of five courses (20 credits), each with a grade of C- or better, in order to complete the program. Students are allowed to "double count" no more than two courses toward their major and minor, and are not allowed to take more than two courses from any one department (except for Justice Studies). In order to officially declare the Minor in Justice Studies, students will need to submit an intent to minor form to Deb Briand in the Justice Studies Office. This form can be found on our website.
