PERFORMANCE MAJOR (B.M.)

https://cola.unh.edu/music/program/bm/performance-major

Description

The Bachelor of Music in performance degree is the program for you if you wish to focus intensively on developing your skills as a performer. This program places heavy emphasis on performance study and is great preparation for master and doctoral degree programs. You'll develop your musicianship through private study, chamber music and some of the best performing ensembles in the region. You'll be immersed in the study of music theory, history, literature and world music while sharpening your listening and performance skills.

Student Learning Outcomes

Program Learning Outcomes

 Students will exhibit the skills necessary for artistic expression at the highest possible level as defined by their particular area of

- concentration in solo and small ensemble (not conducted) and large ensemble (conducted) settings.
- Students will exhibit competency in musicianship and analysis through: their understanding of musical forms and processes; aural, verbal and visual analyses; skill in performance; academic, pedagogical, and compositional applications; rudimentary ability to create derivative or original music.
- Students will demonstrate familiarity with musical literature from the formal concert repertory and from musical traditions outside of that repertory. Students will demonstrate the ability to place music in historical, cultural, and stylistic contexts.
- Students will demonstrate collegiate-level skill in the English language and competence in written and oral communication in English.
- Demonstrate the ability to use technologies current to their area of specialization for professional development and entrepreneurship, and career preparation and promotion.
- Students will demonstrate an understanding of the fundamentals of pedagogy as required in the particular field of study.
- Students in vocal studies will demonstrate competencies in diction and language, as well as interpretive skills, physicality, and stage deportment.
- Students will plan, prepare, and perform a solo recital in collaboration with faculty and staff that includes both organizational elements and artistic preparation.
